You may have noticed that using subject to options is one way of getting alternative financing on your real estate investing properties.

Using this strategy, you can buy homes without limit because you are not forced to come out of pocket to finance them all.

Another strategy that real estate investors use in their real estate investing, is to build up a warchest of private money lenders who they can go to whenever they need capital to buy a great deal.

We act as private money lenders to people whom we work with, and we also use private money lenders to help fund our deals when something wonderful comes along that we want to invest in.
